Arkansas — Where There's Adventure in a Living

I have an interesting letter from Gene Newsom, director of publicity for the Arkansas Resources & Development Commission, State Capitol, Little Rock, introducing the commission's new brochure, "Adventure in Arkansas."

First of all I should report that the new 44-page booklet is a magnificent production of color photographs of the lakes and rivers and mountains of our state. It is part of a continuing program to publicize our outdoor wonderland, our agriculture and industry, throughout America. Executive director of the R. & D. commission is a former Hope man, Wayne C. Fletcher. But getting back to Mr. Newsom's letter about the new booklet:

"We are distributing the first run of 100,000 copies all over the nation and even into foreign countries. Primarily, as you can see, it is aimed at the prospective tourist. Right now Arkansas' tourist industry brings in about 161 million dollars a year."

"Major credit (for the booklet) goes to our photographer, John Blundell, my co-worker, Mrs. Virginia Robinson, H. A. Thomas, artist, and Al Barnes of the Democrat Printing & Lithographing Co."

The perennial complaint among our own people has been that while Arkansas appears to have virtually unlimited resources we don't have much luck turning them to practical account. That is, we talk about 'em — but don't convert 'em into dollars. But the potential tourist business is an exception.

All it takes to bring thousands of tourists to a certain section of the country is a lot of talk — truthful talk, of course, in text and pictures showing exactly what the area has to offer. And Arkansas has a wealth of tourist attractions far beyond that of the average state — attractions which show up truthfully in the pictures produced for the state's new booklet.

We have mountain scenery which rivals that of the Hudson river country in upstate New York; and just one of our new lakes has more water in it than you can find in the whole state of Texas.

And this, verging on argument and controversy, may be a good place to stop. But those 100,000 copies of "Adventure in Arkansas" will travel for years to come, bringing new faces here season after season.

400 Attend Annual Farm Bureau Picnic

The annual Hempstead County Farm Bureau picnic held yesterday at the University of Arkansas Experiment Station was attended by some 400 persons.

The group heard Aubrey Gates, associated director of the University Extension Service, tell them the future of farming depends on the farmers themselves. He indicated it was up to farmers themselves to decide their crops.

The program started at 10 a. m. with games and contests under the direction of Graham Wright, assisted by Kay Kent of Palmox. Brief reports were given on bureau activities.

At noon the visitors enjoyed barbecue, pie, cakes and all kinds of food furnished by the farm Bureau Ladies under the direction of the eals committee — Garland Kidd, Marshall Beck, Fred Fuller and Bill Schooley.

Markets

New York 2 p. m. October cotton 34.49.

Grains had a firm tone in routine dealings on the Chicago Board of Trade today. The market was less active than in earlier sessions this week.

September wheat and oats dropped at the start, largely because of the belief deliveries of cash grain on these contracts Tuesday will be quite large. In contrast, September corn, on which few deliveries are expected, got off to a firm start.

As the session wore along the early losses in September wheat and oats were more than recovered. Deferred contracts were fairly steady from the opening going.

At 11 o'clock (EDT) wheat was 1-7/8 cent higher, September $2.33 7/8. Corn was 1-4-1/2 higher, September $1.74 3/8, and oats were unchanged to 1-4 higher, September $1.74 3/8. Soybeans were 3-4 1/4 cents higher, September $2.82 1/4, and lard was unchanged to 12 1/2 cents a hundred pounds higher, October $15.12.

Widow of J. W. White Files Suit Against Funeral Home, Asking $100,000 Judgment

A lawsuit asking $100,000 has been filed in Hempstead Circuit Court against the Healy and Roth, Inc. funeral home of Little Rock by Mrs. Cloie Estelle White. Widow of J. W. White who was killed in a pedestrian-ambulance accident near Hope August 19.

White, attorney for the White Estate, said the summons had been issued and served on the funeral home the same day the suit was filed, August 29.

White was fatally injured when struck by a Healy & Roth Ambulance driven by Robert C. Priebe, 2 miles east of Hope on Highway 67. Priebe has been charged with negligent homicide and is under $1,000 bond pending grand jury action. He waived preliminary examination in municipal court here August 27.

Mrs. White, the mother of three children, all minors, is administratrix of her husband's estate.

According to the complaint filed Priebe was driving at a high, dangerous and excessive rate of speed, failed to keep proper lookout for persons traveling, failed to have the ambulance under proper control, failed to take necessary precautions at an intersection and drove the ambulance out of the proper lane of traffic.

In a suit filed in Pulaski Circuit Court August 28, the Healy & Roth firm is asking $200 damages to the ambulance and $1,000 judgment for "contusions, great mental shock and fright" suffered by Robert C. Priebe, driver and the ambulance, from the estate of J. W. White.

500,000th Bendix Washer Produced

Four years ago a half dozen major washing machine manufacturers told a Cleveland inventor his new type washer couldn't be built. On August 14th Bendix Home Appliances produced the 500,000th washer of that type.

The 500,000th Economat, a fully automatic washer, featuring a flexible tub undertow agitation and vacuum drying, rolled off the Bendix Home Appliances' assembly line at Clyde, Ohio.

"In just two years or production Bendix achieved that record" said Harvey Holt of Hamm Tire & Appliance Co., local Bendix dealer.

Bendix spent two years improving and developing the Economat after buying it from James Rand and before they put it into production. The Economat undoubtedly is just as revolutionary as was the first automatic washer when Bendix introduced it in 1937.

Although fully automatic, the new bolting to hold it steady during its drying cycle. This is because it employs a completely new principle of vacuum drying in a flexible tub. As the water is lphoned off at the top and bottom, the flexible tub is drawn inward and folds snugly against the clothes around the agitator.

"This drying action is so thorough a single silk handkerchief, washed by itself in the tub, can be dried as fully as an eight-pound load" said Mr. Holt. "Yet it is so gentle an electric light bulb can be kept in the tub through the entire vacuum squeeze cycle without being damaged."

Five More Die Violently

By The Associated Press
Five persons have died violently in Arkansas this week.

Bill Tillery, 22-year-old Izard county resident, drowned while swimming in the White river near Calico Rock Thursday. Witnesses said he had been swimming from a ferry boat when suddenly disappeared, his body was recovered about two hours later.

Curtis Francis McElroy, 18, of Paris, was killed when the car he was driving overturned near Paris on Highway 72 Wednesday night.

Moses Admits He Wants to Be Governor

By LEON HATCH
Forrest City, Aug. 31 —(AP)—C. Hamilton Moses wants to be governor of Arkansas.

The president of the Arkansas Power and Light Co. said so last night at a dinner in his honor at the first Eastern Arkansas Industrial Expansion Exposition here.

But the utility executive refused to say whether he planned to run for the office.

"All of my life I've wanted to be governor, but I doubted whether the state would ever give me that high honor," said Moses.

"I have thought, though, that I should have been thinking what I could do for the people whether they would or not."

Following the dinner, news reporters asked Moses if the statement meant he still would like to be governor. He replied that he would, adding, "practically every Moses declined to comment."

But when asked if he might run man would."

Moses' short address followed a speech by Frank Ahlgren, editor of the Memphis Commercial Appeal.

"I believe we can establish a pattern of small but efficient plants close by agriculture still flourish and where living for worker and family can have decency and dignity," said Ahlgren.

He continued:

"Sweet shops are not good in any community, large or small. Our natural resources should be protected from a ruthless colonial system — our mines, our forests and the oil and sulphur from our ground should not be squandered."

Ahlgren said the South's industrial coming of age must be hurried because "within the next 15 years from one to three million workers will be unable to eke out an existence from the cotton and corn patches."

A highlight of the exposition — which sponsors hope will become an annual affair — was the dedication of the new $15,000,000 amilton Moses power plant of A. P. L.

Ben H. Wooten, Dallas banker and former Arkansasian, spoke at the dedication ceremonies.

Sharis Smith, a 20-year-old blue-eyed blonde, was crowned Miss Kilmartin.

Miss Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Neal Smith of Wynne, Ark., defeated 28 others in a beauty contest.

A student at William Wood college, Fulton, Mo., Miss Smith won an expenses paid trip to New York, Washington and Cleveland and other prizes. She had interrupted a vacation in Florida to participate in the contest.

The senior high school band will meet at 1 p. m. Tuesday for the opening practice, and the Junior High will start work on September 10.

In discussing today's announcement of the 25c rate Star subscribers should consider what's happening elsewhere. The Indiana Daily Press association, covering the whole Middle West, reports that only a year ago 56.8 per cent of its six-day newspapers charged 25 cents a week but today 77 per cent are charging 20 cents a week.

Yearly subscriptions now on "The Star's" books will be honored until expiration, thereafter reverting to the carrier collection system. On special request the office will handle paid-in-advance yearlies, but the rate will be 25 cents a week flat, or $13. Billings for this August, already in the hands of subscribers, will be honored as billed only if paid before the close of business Friday, August 31.

Hope Post Office box subscriptions will be discontinued as soon as they expire. Those living just outside the city carrier system may subscribe at 25 cents per week and pick up their copies at The Star office.

Mail rates outside the Hope retail trading zone will be: One month $1.10; year $13.

Local RFD mail rates stand unchanged. Before the war the basic carrier-delivered rate for six-day newspapers all over America was 15 cents a week. The Star was compelled by rising production costs to increase this to 20 cents in 1946 — and today's announcement marks only the second increase in all these years.

Youth Center Prepares for Fall Program

Full activity at the Hope Youth Center will get underway next week coinciding with the opening of the school. The first planned get together will follow the opening football game of the season between the Hope Indians and the Stamps Yellowjackets.

It was announced today by the Board of Directors of the Hope Kiwanis Club and E. P. Young Jr., chairman of the Hope Boys & Girls Council, that the Youth Center would be under the direction of Lawrence Martin and Miss Ann Wilson, member of the faculty of Hope High School.

With the Kiwanis Club defraying the expenses of operation and supervision Mr. Martin and Miss Wilson will be in charge of the program until some definite action is taken by the City Council for the employment of a full time parks and recreation supervisor. If such a permanent plan is adopted by the City of Hope it is anticipated that the Youth Center program would be integrated into the city wide program.

"The City Council is at the present time donating the use of the Ellis building and providing the utilities for its operation."

The council also has under consideration adoption of a city wide parks and recreation program. This matter will again come before the next regular meeting of the City Council when adoption of a city ordinance will be considered.

Egypt Hails Red Interest in Suez

Alexandria, Egypt, Aug. 31 —(AP)—Egypt's foreign Minister Mohamed Salah El Din Pasha has hailed Russia's sudden interest in the Suez canal as a "turning point toward the path of right and justice and real stability in the Middle East."

He told a news conference last night that a veto threat by the Soviet Union in the United Nations security council against a U. S. British-French resolution calling on Egypt to lift shipping restrictions in the Suez was "a happy surprise."

The restrictions were instituted to hamper trade with Israel.

Soviet Delegate Semyon K. Tsaraphkin hinted Wednesday that he would veto the resolution unless a vote was postponed to give him a chance to talk. The vote was put off until tomorrow.

Crime Probers Say Now Is Time to Strike

The Senate Crime Investigation committee has issued a report covering its 15 months study of criminal activities and ways to stop them.

"The group appealed to the nation's cities to prepare for war on organized crime and on grafting public officials. It added the time to strike is here because many communities have been enervated by criminal elements and corrupt politicians. It also asserted the underworld is growing rich in traffic in narcotics and has made drug addicts of thousands of youngsters."

The report proposed that cities form their own crime commissions and that a national council be formed to help the local groups.

"The commission found that the crime pattern in the smaller cities is no different from that in the larger communities. In investigations made in cities of about 100,000 population—such as Atlanta, City, New Jersey, Newport and Cleveland, Kentucky, and Scranton, Pennsylvania—the senators discovered that the bosses of the big crime syndicates in the larger cities have their counterparts in the smaller communities. It added that as just like the big towns, the smaller ones have their links among gangsters, politicians and police."

The committee called on congress to give its proposed national council a starting sendoff of a $100,000 grant, and thereafter keep its hands off.

A blistering slap was aimed at Florida's Governor Fuller Warren for "persistent refusal" to testify before it under oath. By indirectness another slap was aimed at William O'Dwyer, ambassador to Mexico and former New York mayor, whom it called a friend of hoodlums.

L. R. Man Held on Dope Charge

Max C. Hall, 41, who has been arrested twice since June 20 was charged with possessing morphine illegally.

The jury, meeting here in a one-day session yesterday, also indicted Virgil Beckett, 44, of Havana, Ark., on a charge of using the mails to defraud.

Beckett is accused of advertising trained hunting dogs for sale and supplying orders with untrained animals. In some cases, he did not fill order at all, federal authorities charged.

Beckett has been convicted of the charge twice previously. In all, 43 indictments were returned.

Senate Group Wants Even Higher Taxes

Washington, Aug. 31—(AP)—The senate finance committee has shown a willingness to obtain even more revenue from new and higher excise taxes than the $1,232,000,000 voted by the house.

The senators, in announcing their first decisions on these sales taxes late yesterday, tentatively agreed to add vacuum cleaners, washing machines and garbage disposal units to the list of appliances hit by a 10 per cent tax.

This will add an estimated $55,000,000 a year to the additional revenue from excises voted by the house as a part of its $7,200,000,000 tax hike bill.

It represented the major change made by the finance committee in its consideration of the excise tax measure. The excises generally are applied at the manufacturers' level but are reflected, in course, in retail prices.

The finance committee's listing of the excises at the large gain amounted to a change from its previous votes on the big tax measure.

Before starting to work on the sales taxes, the senators had added about $1,500,000,000 off the additional revenue voted by the house. Most of this came from putting down the tax hike plan, approved by the house for corporations and individuals.

The finance committee continued its review of the excises today at 4 p.m. EST. It still has many house changes to consider although it has covered the levies which involve the big money.

The senators yesterday approved house decisions which would mean higher levies on automobiles, tractors, motorcycles, boats, beer, cigarettes, and a long list of electric gas and oil appliances including dishwashers, clothes dryers, power lawnmowers and motion picture projectors.

All told, the committee approved excise tax boosts totaling about $1,045,000,000.

It also accepted one house provision knocking off $104,000,000 of annual revenue. This section repeals the present three and one-half per cent tax on electric energy.

The senators made some reductions in excises voted by the house so that their net revenue gain was about $360,000,000.

They lost $2,500,000 of extra revenue by rejecting the house 10 per cent levy on electric razors. The committee cut in half the house-approved 20 per cent excise on fountain and ball point pens and mechanical pencils. This cost about $12,000,000 in revenue.

The senators also rejected a house provision to increase the tax on sporting goods from 10 to 15 per cent.

The senators fixed Dec. 31, 1953, as the expiration date for all the excise increases. Termination dates were originally fixed for the wartime excise boosts, but they never were honored.

Fulbright Will Support Truman

Washington, Aug. 31—(AP)—Senator Fulbright (D-Ark.) will support President Truman if he is the Democratic presidential nominee in 1952, the senator said last night.

He didn't say whether he would support him at the convention.

Appearing on a radio program (MBS "Reporters Roundup"), Fulbright predicted victory for the Democratic ticket next year "based on the administration's record."

Fulbright headed the senate inquiry subcommittee which reported that government lending policies had been influenced by a ring with White House contacts. But he said "I can't see how that can be a detriment to the administration. We conducted a thorough investigation and the government agency is now more efficient."

Relations between Fulbright and Mr. Truman have been somewhat cool ever since the senator suggested, after the Republicans won con-had been under surveillance for the past 10 weeks.

Narcotics dealers from Los Angeles, Chicago, Detroit and Boston flew her regularly to buy from the seven new police said.

They identified the last of the alleged ring, as John Rodriguez, alias Jake Rodley, 26, of Manhattan.

Missionary to China Will Speak in Hope

Miss Mary Mitchell of Conway, missionary to China, will arrive in Hope Sunday to fill a number of speaking engagements and to visit with the many friends she made as a teacher in the local schools.

Former pupils and patrons will remember her as a popular second grade teacher at Brookwood school about eight years ago.

Miss Mitchell has been a teacher in the Davison School, Snochow, China, until war conditions made it necessary for the missionaries to leave.

She will speak at the evening service at the First Methodist Church on Sunday, and will address the W. S. C. S. on Monday afternoon.

Monday evening she will be the special guest of the Wesleyan Service Guild, whose organization is sponsoring her appearance here.

At his news conference yesterday, Mr. Truman once again brushed aside all efforts to draw out his 1952 intentions. He has said he has decided whether he will run again but that he is not ready to say what the decision is.

Three Die in Bus-Truck Wreck

Kenosha, Wis., Aug. 31—(AP)—A Greyhound bus rammed into the rear of a semi-trailer truck last night on double-lane Highway 1, bringing death to three of its 37 passengers. Eight more were hospitalized with injuries.

Kenosha county Sheriff Leonard J. Jensen reported the truck driver said the accident occurred as he pulled back onto the highway after parking on the shoulder of the road when he became drowsy. He said he did not see the approaching bus as he pulled out into the traffic lane. He was held by Kenosha authorities.

Two of the dead were taken from the wrecked bus. The third died at Kenosha hospital. Two were identified from papers in their purses as Milwaukee women—Susan J. Duebig, about 70, and Mrs. Elsie Blankenheim. The third remained unidentified.

Red Delegates to Live in Luxury

San Francisco, Aug. 31—(AP)—The Russian delegation will live a millionaire's life in a palatial $1,600,000 suburban estate during the seven new police said.

The Reds rented it yesterday — for as long as three weeks.

That lifted eyebrows. The conference opens Tuesday. The American plan is to end it Saturday.

The Russians are reported bent on a protracted and controversial session.

Whatever the duration, the Russians will live in the grand manner on the 12-acre estate while all other delegations are loomed out hotel windows.

The estate, uplands, has mammoth colonnades, descending terraces, hilly ponds, interior walls of marble and imported chests in woodwork and a $250,000 Tudor gothic library.

Mrs. Ronice Jacks, the owner, will stay with a friend. But she will leave all personal belongings for the Russians' use, including a gold dining set and a silver service.

The central living room is as large as the lobby of San Francisco's St. Francis hotel, where the Russians had rented half a floor.

Today, Edward Sequeira, the hotel's executive assistant manager, moaned:

"They never even came near us to tell us they wouldn't be moving into their 20 rooms Saturday."

The American Wife Can Get Anything From the Average Husband But His Attention

By HAL BOYLE

New York. —(AP)—The average American wife can get everything she wants from the average American husband — except his attention.

Over the years a dense wall of fog rises between her vocal chords and his ears. No matter how many words she pours into this fog all she gets back is "um huh" or a non-committal grunt.

And though the manly fellow may shower her with mind and diamonds, and endow her with progeny, the wife remains unsatisfied. She thinks conversation, like charity, should begin at home.

"You don't talk to me any more," she says accusingly. Translated into English, this means: "You don't listen to me anymore."

But, granting that this is what she really has in mind, why doesn't the average husband listen to his wife? Why shouldn't a dirty

Frizzle Wanted by State Police

Little Rock, Aug. 31. —(AP)—Arkansas will seek to extradite Billy Singer, William O. (Lefty) Frizzle for trial on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

Pulaski County Prosecutor Tom Downie said yesterday that Frizzle has been charged with contributing to the delinquency of a 17-year-old Little Rock girl. He said the singer was named in a warrant sworn out by the girl's mother.

Downie said that Frizzle, arrested in Nashville, Tenn., had refused to waive extradition.

old thing that grew up from rats and snails and puppy dog tails jump at the chance to converse with a fair creature made of sugar and spice and everything nice."

I asked several husbands, this question. The first said, rather cynically I thought:

"Listen, I don't know why, but if you lived by a waterfall for 20 years do you think you'd still hear it?"

Another replied, "To tell the truth, I don't remember anything my wife said to me since 1935."

It turned out that what she had said then was: "Shut up!"

A third answer that he quit listening to his bride because all she did was make such despondent remarks as:

"Well, guess what happened today? The laundry didn't come back." Or, "That new butcher is getting awful fresh with me again. I wish you'd go to the store and put him in his place."

This husband said a strained silence had ensued in his household ever since he told her, "Honey, why don't you put your complaints to music and play them on a ukelele?"

A fourth marital old-timer said defensively, "that's why people have kids — so wives'll have somebody to talk to. Conversation is for couples that are still courting."

And a fifth said: "It's simple. The less you talk at home, the fewer the quarrels."

My what bitter men! And then I met a white-haired old gentleman, as wise as any man can be in the ways and whims of women, who said:

"My boy, there are only two sexes that the sheriff and his deputy were still safely locked up. I stopped the car within a couple blocks of the jail."

"I'm going to find Gene," I said. Julie got out and came around to get under the wheel. I studied her in the light of a street lamp as she climbed into the driver's seat.

"Are you going to tell me what you were doing at Charlie Berman's place the night he was killed?" Julie winced. "I don't know what you're talking about."

She drove away without looking at me. I walked down the street to Gene Sawyer's walk-up second-floor office. Gene often worked at night, and I thought he might be there. He wasn't. I used Julie's automatic to break the glass in his reception room door. I went inside and dialed his house number, using the phone in the reception room.

Gene, a bachelor, lived alone. He answered the phone. I said: "I'm at your office, Gene. I had to break the glass in your door. I couldn't risk phoning from anywhere else. I've got to see you. I've got a lead. An address that Cleo passed along before she was murdered. Can you come right down?"

"I'll be right down." I was afraid somebody would see me from the street. I went back into Gene's private office. I lighted a cigaret and smoked it slowly until only a short butt was left. I stamped out the butt in an ash tray, and my gaze wandered to the bookcase behind Gene's desk. My eyes fell on the book he had marked previously, the one on which he had relied to get back my leages and my property.

Then my heart must have skipped a beat. The book was numbered and the number was 189. The book, as also titled, and the title was "Atlantic Reporter."

I grabbed the book from the shelf and opened it at the marked spot.

DOROTHY DIX

First Dance

Dear Miss Dix: I am a Junior in High School, and we recently held our prom, which was our first formal and something we looked forward to all through school. We went to lots of trouble to decorate our gym, which did look beautiful. Then when we entered the room on the night of the dance, dressed in our best, we were greeted by many mothers and fathers who occupied chairs and tables around the gym for the rest of the evening. We're very glad to have them come to see the decorations, but can't understand why they have to stay all evening. We have chaperones, and some of the faculty attend the dance. We will be having other dances in the fall, and would like to know how to handle this "parent" situation.

Answer: You must try to understand, Kathy, exactly why so many parents attended your prom. Their purpose was not to act as chaperones, and certainly they did not want to be in the way. Their sole motivation was pride in their little darlings—male and female—dressed to the hilt and being really "grown up" for the first time.

You Are Right

I agree with you that they should have been satisfied to inspect the decorations, stay for a short while to watch the dancing, then go home and leave the young men on their own. This probably will be the procedure on future dances, the "first" formal is the one that brings out the parental pride. Remember, too, that many parents never had the privilege of such dances in their own youth and take double pleasure in the vicarious thrills they get from their children's affairs.

From your letter I can see that you conducted this affair admirably, and you, too, should feel pride in having your parents see how well you assume responsibility.

Answer: A man can say that really make sense to a woman. The first is, "Will you marry me?" The second is, "I love you."

"When he has said those two sentences he is through with the art of conversation at home. The trouble is that women, who often don't mean what they say, always suspect that men never mean what they say. They want to be assured over and over again. If a man, no matter what his wife said to him, just answered "I love you," everything would be all right.

"I have followed that formula for 40 years, and I don't actually remember anything my wife has said in all that time."

When I asked him if it had been ever thus through history, he said:

"No. In the cave days there was more conversation. The husband went forth and slew a deer and brought it home. He would brag and brag until the meat was all gone. Then his wife would hand him his club and say, 'honey, go do it again.'"

"Today, however, the average husband doesn't bring enough home to brag about and he wearies of hearing his wife say, 'is that all?'"

"A final point: Civilization is boring to many people. The husband is bored at work, the wife is bored at home."

"The difficulty that arises then is that a man, when he gets bored, shuts up. But a woman—oh!"

And the old man shook his white head in sorrow.

Dear Miss Dix: I am 23 years old and going steady with a boy 27 for two years. During that time I was true to him, but six months ago I decided to have one last fling before settling down. That fling cost me more than I ever thought it would. I lost the boy I loved. I've confessed to him and have tried to explain my actions, but he won't listen to me and won't forgive me. If he would give me one more chance I'm sure I could show him how sincere I am.

Answer: One of the greatest tragedies in life is the "last fling" or the "one chance" that costs the faith of one we love. Faith is at once the strongest and most tenuous of human bonds. It can move mountains, so we are told, and it can, in turn, be turned to mist by the faintest breath of suspicion. To be worthy of another's faith is an honor to be worn with pride, and to hold at any cost. To throw such a guardian away for one last fling is to cheapen one's self immeasurably.

You realize now how great is the loss of your sweetheart's trust and love. True love cannot exist without perfect trust, and it is unlikely that you will regain either. Your only hope of convincing him that you are sincerely contrite is to stop pleading, and show by actions that you can be true. Perhaps in time he will get over his hurt pride and give you another chance.

Dear Miss Dix: Some time ago I became interested in a man and we went together quite steadily. Then I discovered he is engaged to another girl. He insists there is nothing wrong in our seeing each other since he is only engaged and not married. I have fallen in love with him. My problem is, shall I try to forget him or fight to get him.

Answer: If you want to do him a favor, fight to get him! She won't be losing much if you're so desperate for a man that you'll take him under such circumstances, you deserve what you'll get.

Dear Miss Dix: How can two beautiful people finally get together? I am shy to the ninth degree and have found my ideal man in the place I work. He is quiet, industrious, tall, and while not too handsome, suits me completely. But he is shy as I am! I am sure, from the way he watches me, that I looked at the girl's bleeding face. "I never killed anyone, Earnie. But I wouldn't mind killing now."

"They want to know what became of some money," the girl screamed. "They say Cleo got it. If she did, she didn't tell me."

"That's right," said Earnie. "Charlie had 25 G's on him the night he got shot."

I addressed Kay: "If you do decide to tell, Earnie and Tussig will have nothing to do with it. They're going to tell me how they killed Cleo."

The girl had looked relieved. Now she looked worried. She clutched her bleeding face and said:

"Cleo was alive when I left her. She begged me to contact you without anybody seeing me. That's why I hid in your car."

That stopped me. Earnie Berman and Babe Tussig looked at me amusedly. The girl said: "Cleo told me something else. She said that if I didn't find you and anything happened to her I was to give you an address. It was 189 Atlantic."

I had almost forgotten Berman and Tussig.

"Atlantic what?" I shouted it. "What was the name of the town?" "I don't know. I don't think she gave me the name of any town. There was just another number. I think it was 455."

Berman sneered. "And I'm laying odds of ten-to-one that the 25 G's are stashed away at that address. I'll give Cleo credit. She

No Dismissed Cadets to Be Restored

West Point, N. Y., Aug. 31 — (AP) — The U. S. Military Academy today says no cadet dismissed in the cheating scandal will be restored to duty.

Major Gen. Frederick A. Irving, West Point superintendent, issued a statement yesterday saying "no cadet found guilty and separated has been restored to duty, and there is no intention of doing so."

Irving's statement followed an earlier statement by Attorney General Tom C. Clark, who told a bar in New York that seven of the accused cadets had been "restored to duty."

He said he would not divulge the source of information unless it was asked by a congressional investigation committee.

Dart is a member of the committee on justice of the New York Civil and Criminal Courts Bar association conducting public hearings in New York City on the legal aspects of the cadet dismissals.

Originally, 90 cadets were accused of violating the academy's honor code by cheating on examinations, including practically all of army's vaunted football team from previous statements by academy officials. It appeared that other cadets had been questioned.

An academy spokesman said Wednesday that several cadets whose name had come up during the academy probe had been cleared. He did not specify whether these were among the 90 originally accused. But he added that none of the 92 cadets who already had left the Point had been recalled and restored to duty.

Among the four dismissed cadets testifying before the legal committee yesterday was George Madison McCullough, of Siloam Springs, Ark.

McCullough told the committee that academy authorities questioned him for eight hours one day and three hours the next. He said he finally reached a point where he no longer cared what he said.

"You got to a point, because of the length of the questioning, where you didn't care what you said," Dart asked.

"I did," replied McCullough. "Were you concerned in connection with the whole proceedings, would you say?"

"I feel that way," McCullough said.

The hearing was adjourned, pending further call by special sessions Justice Heiman Hoffman, committee chairman and association president.

Foreign Aid Cuts Rapped by President

Washington, Aug. 30 — (AP) — President Truman described today as a ploy and misplaced economy and congressional cuts in funds for the foreign aid program.

The President said he would continue to do all he could to restore the cuts, but he conceded that it looks rather hopeless now.

He said it was a very serious situation. And he added that it's a ploy to overturn the whole apparent in the interest of misplaced economy must at a time when the economy of Europe is beginning to near the point of recovery.

He said it wasn't economy to do what advocates of the cuts are doing now.

In the senate, senators showed more concern today over who should direct foreign aid spending than over how much should be spent.

Senator Y. Alexander Smith (R-N.J.) said he would propose some form of "single administrator" to control the purse strings of the $7,335,700,000 in the aid bill being discussed by the senate.

Senator McMahon (D-Conn.) predicted such a move "will be defeated." He was supported by Senators Connally (D-Tex.) and Sparkman (D-Ala.).

The house voted for a single administrator when it approved $37,000,000 less than the senate figure. This was viewed generally as a slap to Secretary of State Acheson.

Chairman Taft (R-Ohio) of the senate GOP policy committee said today he would support the Smith move, even though it was rejected by the senate foreign relations and armed services committees when they sent the bill to the senate.

Senator Kefauver (D-Tenn.), in a separate interview, said he also favored a single administrator.

"I think the plan now before the senate could be confusion compounded," Kefauver said. "It invites disputes instead of coordination."

The two senate committees agreed to give the secretary of defense primary authority over military aid, which accounts for $6,013,000,000 of the funds.

The economic cooperation administration, due to expire next June 30, would retain control of most of the $1,322,700,000 of economic aid. And the state department would receive continuing authority over the so-called "front four" program of technical assistance to undeveloped areas of the world.

The attack occurred about 9:30 p. m. in the home of Mrs. J. M. Boyce, 89, her daughter, Mrs. Velma Weidlein, 54, also was attacked.

Biggs said the victims gave this account of the attack in her bedroom when she heard her mother call out. She ran to her mother's room, where she was confronted by a Negro who struck her on the head, knocking her to the floor.

She said the prowler tried to rape her, but apparently became frightened and fled.

Both of the women were taken to a hospital, where attendant said Mrs. Boyce's condition was serious. They said she suffered a concussion. Mrs. Weidlein suffered a severe cut on the scalp they said.

Connally Answers Few Questions

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Aug. 30 — (AP) — All by himself Senator Tom Connally today was an eye witness of the alleged Kaesong bombing which United Nations military leaders have denounced as a fake.

The correspondent, Alan Winnington, also gave a play by play account of what he described as the "sham investigation" of the incident carried out by a U. N. military mission. Winnington is a propagandist for the Chinese Communists. He admits being in their employ.

He said the bombing was somewhat.

"If we try to stretch it out, we are taking a dangerous gamble and one that I am not willing to assume the responsibility for."

If the two Connally statements are pulled together and boiled down, this is what he said:

"This foreign aid program hurts, and how it hurts, but we have to do it to have Allies in stopping communism because otherwise we might have to stand alone."

But when he got into the field of prophecy — that the spending may taper off in three years — he may have been doing wishful thinking, even though he was comforting those taxpayers who are fed up on spending.

The problem of stopping communism, short of war, may continue for years and maybe at even higher expense if new crisis develop.

Just three years ago the problem of keeping Europe out of communism seemed simple enough. We'd set up the Marshall plan and by 1952 we could drop it because by then Europe ought to be okay.

But things got worse. We made a military alliance with Europe, and the Korean war came along, all of which called for more spending. And we have no assurance things won't get even worse.

In the next three years — by 1954 — government officials say we'll have to spend at least $25,000,000,000 on foreign military and economic if we just go like we're going.

But the military side of it was different, in Connally's view. For, as to military aid to nations lined up against communism, he said national security "requires large expenditures to contribute to the military defense of areas which are vital to us."

In this talk undoubtedly he was representing the views of many taxpayers who resent forking out more taxes for foreign people although the Truman administration argues that military and economic aid are both necessary and go hand in hand.

On Aug. 29 yesterday, the full senate took up the foreign aid problem, for debate and vote, and Connally as chairman of the foreign relations committee made a speech.

Referring to the policy behind the foreign aid program he said:

"The policy is that of strengthening the United States through strengthening our Allies. . . . It is the policy that recognizes that the United States cannot stand alone in a hostile world."

"It is the policy that seeks to promote world peace through helping the free nations of the world make themselves so strong that no aggressor will dare attack them."

He added: If this country and its European Allies "now put our shoulders to the wheel and push ahead with this program, we can complete it within a relatively short period—say, three years or so — and then relax our effort somewhat."

Red Writers Blame Bombing on Americans

London, Aug. 30 — (AP) — The Communist Daily Worker's correspondent in North Korea declared today he was an eye witness of the alleged Kaesong bombing which United Nations military leaders have denounced as a fake.

The correspondent, Alan Winnington, also gave a play by play account of what he described as the "sham investigation" of the incident carried out by a U. N. military mission. Winnington is a propagandist for the Chinese Communists. He admits being in their employ.

He said the bombing was somewhat.

"If we try to stretch it out, we are taking a dangerous gamble and one that I am not willing to assume the responsibility for."

If the two Connally statements are pulled together and boiled down, this is what he said:

"This foreign aid program hurts, and how it hurts, but we have to do it to have Allies in stopping communism because otherwise we might have to stand alone."

But when he got into the field of prophecy — that the spending may taper off in three years — he may have been doing wishful thinking, even though he was comforting those taxpayers who are fed up on spending.

The problem of stopping communism, short of war, may continue for years and maybe at even higher expense if new crisis develop.

Just three years ago the problem of keeping Europe out of communism seemed simple enough. We'd set up the Marshall plan and by 1952 we could drop it because by then Europe ought to be okay.

But things got worse. We made a military alliance with Europe, and the Korean war came along, all of which called for more spending. And we have no assurance things won't get even worse.

In the next three years — by 1954 — government officials say we'll have to spend at least $25,000,000,000 on foreign military and economic if we just go like we're going.

But the military side of it was different, in Connally's view. For, as to military aid to nations lined up against communism, he said national security "requires large expenditures to contribute to the military defense of areas which are vital to us."

In this talk undoubtedly he was representing the views of many taxpayers who resent forking out more taxes for foreign people although the Truman administration argues that military and economic aid are both necessary and go hand in hand.

On Aug. 29 yesterday, the full senate took up the foreign aid problem, for debate and vote, and Connally as chairman of the foreign relations committee made a speech.

nessed by himself, Wilfred Burchett of the Paris Ce Sotr and Chi Chi Ping, of the Shanghai T'ung-pao. Winnington's story said all three have signed the following statement:

"We were all less than 200 yards from the place where the bombs fell. We were all within a few feet of Colonel Kinney and Major Kinney (American investigator) during their so-called investigation."

"Notes made at the time are still in our possession."

"We vouch absolutely for the accuracy of the official factual report given by the Chinese and Koreans."

"On arrival at Kaesong some three hours after the bombs dropped, Kinney was informed that aircraft had bombed the conference area and machine-gunned delegates' living quarters."

"Kinney immediately began rapid-fire questions in a very hostile fashion: 'What is the effect of the bombing? How many planes? Who saw planes? Any eye witnesses?'"

"Col. Ching, of the Korean delegation, replied: 'This will become clear during the investigation.'"

"Kinney instructed his assistant to record that no one knew how many planes or bombs."

"About 90 yards from the empty United Nations house was a shallow crater and nearby a crumpled napalm container. Splashes of napalm lay round."

"Kinney sneered: 'Is that a bomb? That could be anything. I have seen enough. I've dropped plenty of bombs myself. That's nothing.'"

"He called his interpreter and said: 'Tell them. Tell them. If this is the sort of thing they are going to show us I am getting impatient — very impatient.'"

"On a hillside about 200 yards from the delegation headquarters, Col. Chang pointed to a crater where bomb fins lay embedded. 'What is it?' He asked. 'How did it get there?'"

"Kinney: 'You should know better than I.'"

"He turned to the bystanders, most of whom had relatives killed by American bombs, and said in a most sneering and taunting voice: 'Has anyone here ever seen the results of American bombing?' No one replied."

"Ten paces away, near the shrapnel-pitted rock, lay another crater."

Farm Bureau Awards Given

Little Rock, Aug. 30 — (AP) — Earl Harness of Harrison is the winner of the Arkansas farm bureau dedication's year-round pasture contest.

Harness was presented with a $100 prize at a dinner meeting of the 33rd annual conference of Arkansas vocational agriculture instructors here last night.

He is one of 33,000 farmers enrolled in the state for vocational instruction.

Runner-up to Harness was Leburn Fowler of Wheatley, H.C. Barnett of Bradley took third place, and L. H. McCullough of Salem was fourth.

Earlier, assistant secretary of agriculture Knox T. Hutchinson said that American farm families "are abundantly meeting the demands of the emergency."

The U. S. department of agriculture spokesman predicted that farmers will come very near meeting 1951's high defense production goals in spite of droughts and widespread flood damage.

British Deny Locating Missing Men

London, Aug. 30 —(AP)—The foreign office denied today that British secret agents have located missing diplomats Guy Burgess and Donald MacLean. William Ridsdale, head of the foreign office news department, said reports published in two London newspapers this morning were completely "without foundation." The foreign office kept silent for hours after the reports first appeared before issuing the denial.

Ridsdale conferred with top officials for an hour before making his comment.

He said that the search for the two is exactly where it was before the stories were printed in today's issues of the Daily Herald and the Daily Express — in other words, Britain is still hunting for the two officials.

The newspaper stories quoted agents of the British secret service as saying they had located the two diplomats who vanished without a trace last May 25.

Ridsdale said the agents claimed they made no such statements. He refused to say whether the secret agents had made any statements at all which might indicate a new development in the European-wide search for the two Britons who were in a position to know many of the West's top secrets.

The London Daily Herald said the foreign office learned the whereabouts of the two after a three-month search by British agents and Western European police.

It said MacLean had communicated with his American-born wife, Miranda, who is vacationing with their three children on the French Riviera.

The Herald's newspaper of the governing labor party and has close government connections.

The conservative Daily Graphic, in a dispatch from Paris, said the same story was current there and added that Mrs. MacLean had left her Riviera villa for a secluded spot in the Var mountains 50 miles away.

Neither story gave any hint where the men supposedly are and did not indicate one way or another whether they have disappeared behind the iron curtain as has been suggested by high officials.

The two men have been the quarry in one of the greatest manhunt of modern times since they disappeared May 25.

MacLean, 38, was chief of the American section of the foreign office and Burgess, 40, had just been recalled from Washington after frequent brushes with the po-

Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison told the house of commons there was no evidence they took any secret documents with them but the government appeared concerned over possible betrayal of Western diplomatic secrets.

The government has made no progress reports on the secret. The men were traced as far as St. Malo, France, and have been identified as passengers in a taxi which took them to Rennes. There the trail went cold.

Their families received telegrams from Paris and Rome, but the originals were not in the diplomats' handwriting.

MacLean suffered a nervous breakdown while serving in Cairo and there were suggestions in parliament that heavy work in the American department brought on another one. Morrison said there was no evidence of this.

Another theory was that the two had gone off on a bender and were reluctant to return and face a scandal.

Warns Some Prices to Go Higher

Washington, Aug. 30 —(AP)—Price Stabilizer Michael V. DiSalle said today some prices may go up even if congress changes the economic controls law as President Truman requests.

The government contends high bail is necessary to prevent the seven from running away to escape trial.

The indictment linked the seven with Communist party headquarters in New York. It charged a conspiracy dating back to April 1, 1945. It said all or most of them served as members of the Communist party's Hawaiian executive board.

The seven were arrested in a dramatic FBI roundup at dawn Tuesday. Besides Hall they were Charles E. Wilson, admitted chairman of the Hawaiian Communist party, and his wife, Eileen.

John E. Reinecke, former school teacher. Dwight James Freeman, a con-man, Jack Kimoto and Koji Ariyoshi, of the weekly newspaper Honolulu record.

While free on bail, Hall has been conducting wage talks with representatives of the island's $120,000,000 sugar industry.

The ILWU has filed strike notices with the national labor relations board and the territorial labor board. This is an implied threat to strike. But no strike vote has been taken. Observers said the two sides appeared to be close to an agreement.

alleged Communists, including Hawaii's top labor leader, were ordered arraigned in federal court tomorrow on charges of plotting to advance the violent overthrow of the U. S. government.

Jack W. Hall, regional director of Harry Bridges' International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's union, and six others were arrested Tuesday and indicted Wednesday.

They are scheduled to disqualify themselves.

The jurist, 7-year-old Delbert E. Metzger, indicated to a newsman he has no intention of taking himself out of the case.

"I decline to be intimidated," he said. "I don't have to obey anybody except my reasoning and my conscience."

Attorney General J. Howard McGrath asked the disqualification. He made the request because Metzger Tuesday set bail for each of the seven accused at $5,000. The government asked for $75,000. After the indictment Metzger raised it to $7,500.

Metzger asserted higher bail would be a form of "punishment before the trial."

Probers Would Investigate Washington

Washington, Aug. 30 —(AP)—The senate crime committee, ending a dramatic crusade against gangsterism and lack of law enforcement, called today for a probe into crime in the nation's capital itself.

But it guarded well the secret of other recommendations it will make to the senate in a report which will officially end its 15-month career of searching into dark places in big and little towns across the land.

The report probably will call for contempt citations against a number of reluctant witnesses.

The group, headed by Senator O'Connor (D-Md.), pushed to complete the report in time to hand it to the senate Friday or Saturday and then turn over to another committee its unspent funds, records and investigating powers.

Staff employees said the committee — under senate orders to "continue the study and surveillance" of organized crime and how to destroy it — will find the wallet nearly empty.

The committee, led by Senator Edwin C. Johnson (D-Colo.), agreed yesterday to take a look at the records and check with the federal bureau of investigation (FBI) before deciding its next step.

Work of the empty coffers may have a bearing on those plans. Johnson noted crime committee leaders showed a balance of nearly $35,000, but its staff said later that unpaid debts would eat about that up.

The crime committee, originally headed by Senator Kefauver (D-Tenn.), disclosed last night that its report contains a section urging a thorough study of organized crime in the District of Columbia.

Its hearings had brought a smattering of testimony that the gangster, the narcotics peddler and the hoodlum have operated freely in this house of the government. Congress governs the District of Columbia.

The Washington police have said they would welcome any inquiry into law enforcement here, and Richard G. Moser, the committee's staff counsel, said the group felt such a probe is overdue.

The crime committee was mum on whether its report would recommend that Johnson's group start up a new inquiry into crime throughout the nation. There was speculation it might refrain from a direct recommendation.

Informed sources have hinted the report will go down the list of states in which the group has held hearings on the narcotics traffic, gambling and other underworld affairs, and use brusque language concerning law enforcement in those areas.

Among other things, the group is expected to make more than passing mention of Gov. Fuller Warren of Florida, who refused to testify under oath before the committee. Warren and the committee engaged in a bitter running feud before the senators decided not to try to force him to testify.

Hospital Funds Missing at Spa

Hot Springs, Aug. 29 —(AP)—An investigation is underway here to determine what happened to $100,050 from funds of the Leo N. Levi Memorial hospital.

Deputy Garland County Prosecutor Dick Hobbs said $100,000 originally was reported missing.

Since that time, Carl Kaufman, former chandler and bookkeeper at the institution has been charged with embezzlement of $2,950. He is accused of stealing $1,500 on June 12, 1950 and $1,450 on Aug. 22, 1950. Kaufman is free on $5,000 bond.

AP&L Seeks to Sell Bonds

Little Rock, Aug. 29 —(AP)—Arkansas Power and Light company today asked the Arkansas public service commission to authorize it to sell $8 million of first mortgage bonds to become due in 1961.

The issue would be used to aid in financing company construction already underway and additional proposed construction.

The application said the bonds would be made of competitive bids and that the company believed the interest rate would not exceed three and one-half per cent annually.

AP&L also asked the commission to authorize it to construct 3,011 miles of rural line in Mississippi county. The proposed new line would serve 27 prospective customers and would cost an estimated $9,018.

Is Silent on Copper Strike Plans

Washington, Aug. 30 —(AP)—President Truman today declined to indicate what plans the government may have for dealing with the nation-wide copper strike.

When reporters tried to draw him out on it at his news conference, Mr. Truman said he had not yet received a report from the wage stabilization board.

He said he couldn't comment until he knows what's in the board's report.

Some government action soon was generally anticipated since the office of defense mobilization has said the strike is a serious threat to the mobilization program.

The wage stabilization board stepped out of the controversy late last night after the mine, mill and smelter workers union refused to end off the strike.

The board apparently found little epiphany in the deadlock which has halted most of the nation's production of copper, a critically short defense material.

A spokesman said the board will report to Mr. Truman early today on the negotiations he asked it to take over on Tuesday. It held a 90-minute hearing yesterday, and discussed the case again last night.

A possible next step would be for the President to appoint a board of inquiry to report to him on the facts in the case, but such a board would have no authority to propose an actual peace settlement. The strike could continue while the board investigated.

And Attorney General McGrath would have to wait until the board reported before he could seek a court injunction to end the walk-out under the Taft-Hartley act.

However, if the President should feel there is little hope of settlement and the walkout is creating a national emergency, he could bypass court action and order government seizure of the mines and smelters.

Asiatics May Hold Own Jap Peace Meet

New Delhi, India, Aug. 31 —(AP)—Prime Minister Nehrū told parliament today the Asian countries may hold a Japanese peace conference of their own after the American-sponsored conference in San Francisco ends.

Nehrū said earlier this week that India, which is boycotting the San Francisco meeting, would sign a separate, individual pact with Japan.

Sunday School LESSON

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.
Discrepancies and inconsistencies are common among mortals, but it is doubtful whether and discrepancy and inconsistency is deeper persistent, and more widespread than that between the racial and color-line prejudices and the plain teachings of the New Testament.

The Master gathered around him the first disciples, but the Day of Pentecost has been commonly regarded as marking the beginning of its world organization (Acts 2). It was a racially conglomerate mass of people (Acts 2:9-11), who heard Peter that day, and experienced the outpouring of the Spirit. There was no racial prejudice there. Racial and religious prejudice soon met a testing time. Only a great vision convinced Peter that he should not call what God had cleansed "common and unclean" (Acts 10), and an angelic message led Philip to the baptizing and welcoming into the Christian fold of a black-skinned Ethiopian (Acts 8:26-39).

But even these incidents with their plain teaching and implications did not prevent various prejudices among the early Christians as many passages in Paul's Epistles clearly show.

Greatest of all in the rebuke of racial and religious prejudice is the example of the Master himself in the famous incident of the meeting with the Woman of Samaria.

recorded in the fourth chapter of John's Gospel. Read in the light of its time and environment that story is remarkable in its revelation of how Jesus in His earthly life lived above the prejudices, and even the customs, of the time and place.

The women marvelled that Jesus a Jew, should have asked a drink of her for "the Jews have no dealings with the Samaritans." But she might equally have marvelled, as did the disciples when they returned from the city, that Jesus should have conversed with her at all. For it was against the custom for a man to meet and converse with a woman in a public place. The woman, moreover, was of none

No Change in Oil Situation

Tehran, Iran, Aug. 20 —(AP)—U. S. Ambassador Henry F. Grady conferred for 40 minutes today with Iran's Premier Mohammed Mossadegh. He said afterwards that there has been no change in Iran's opposition to British proposals to settle the oil crisis.

Grady said he saw the shah yesterday and Mossadegh today in an attempt to discover any developments since the talks broke down last week.

He denied that the U. S. government plans any further steps to break the deadlock.

Grady said Mossadegh indicated Iran had no proposals for renewal of the talks, but seemed to be waiting for a new approach from Britain. Britain has declared the next step is up to the Iranians.

To Crack Down on Some Sales

Washington, Aug. 30 —(AP)—The Federal reserve board is about to crack down on the practice of advertising "no money down" sale of television sets, refrigerators and other appliances subject to federal credit restrictions.

Board members discussed the proposed regulation yesterday with interested senators and reported they got a sympathetic response.

As officials explained it, the "no money down" ads usually say trade-in allowances will be generous enough to meet the lowered requirement for a 15 per cent down payment. The new economic controls act permits trade-in allowances to be counted toward down payments.

Officials said in some cases ads have promised the allowance of $40 for an old radio set not worth $5. They said the board regards this as price cutting rather than a good-faith trade-in.

The trees are preaching! Let's listen! What is that twisted tree saying to you and to me? What is the second and smaller tree telling you of life, as it twists about the other? "Only God can make a tree"; but even God's purpose to make a strong and straight tree sometimes fails. Why did not this tree grow tall and upright and sturdy? Why ill-formed and crooked and misshapen?

And so are some of us. Why do not women and men grow upward toward God and the good? Why have lives become twisted and gnarled and unattractive? Has the tree a lesson for us here? Most twisted trees were bent when they were young; some storm or some accident worked its evil will upon them. They were intended to grow straight and strong and beautiful; the seed was good, the soil was right; but they did not get the right start. When they were young some sinister influence left its mark upon them for all the years; they have grown in twisted shape because some force shaped them that way. How can we protect young human life from such twisting and scarring? The good heritage is not enough; the comfortable home is not enough; unless we elders see that this fine young life gets its chance to grow straight and true.

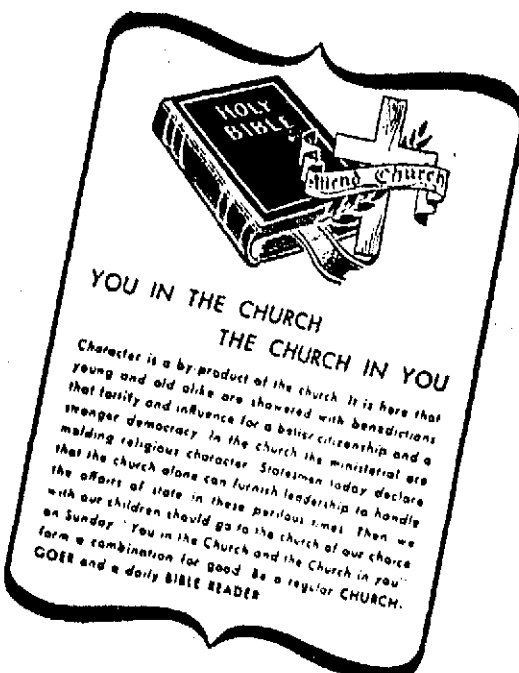

The neglected child of the street or of the lane gets an early twist; the storm of blight and wickedness and evil is too great for the young life to take; he is subjected too early to the sights and sounds of the women and men who have wrecked themselves.

The pampered child of the foolish parent who is too busy or too careless to guide the developing spirit gets twisted too soon. There are rules that must be learned if one is to play the game of life successfully; there are good habits that must be formed under patient discipline and by good example.

The frightened child who has been compelled to listen to quarreling and scolding elders gets an unhappy fear and disrespect for human contact. He has a right to live in an atmosphere of patient good will and of forbearance, but he is misdirected by selfish and unkind words and deeds.

The sour and the surly children of loveless homes and communities bear the marks of misdirection forever; every child has need of love and kindness and justice and patient understanding; these make the healthful air of human development.

Prayer and reverence for God and the good, loving fellowship in ways of integrity and of helpfulness make the right soil for straight-growing persons. As the twig is bent, so grows the tree.
